

This course takes a closer look at China over the past 200 years. It will go through the “Hundred years of humiliation,” the Nationalist and Communist Revolutions, the Maoist experiments, Tiananmen Square movement in 1989, and the resurgence of China as an economic power in the 21st century. Major themes include nationalism and state-building, gender, the impacts of conflicts within China and without on the society, and the endurance of the centralized Chinese state.
